Descripción

At estudio alfa we specialize in custom mobile application development.
We take care of all phases of the project, from project ideation, design, planning, programming, testing, management, implementation and maintenance.
We have experience in development for a multitude of sectors using the most diverse technologies. We like to be challenged and help the customer to achieve them.
We love to treat customers as we would like to be treated, so when we approach a project we are not the best executing arm, but we are a member of the team advising based on our experience which is the best strategy, even if it goes against our interests.
The profile of our customers ranges from a freelancer to large corporations, national and international.
